

Si Robin Foundation Flight Training Scholarship

Stacia Yat Yeung
El Monte, CA

BIOGRAPHY:

Stacia is 29 years old, born and raised Angelenos. Growing up, she was a competitive swimmer and took piano lessons. Raised by a single mom, Stacia had unconditional support to follow her own path, as unconventional as it may be for a first-generation American. This instilled in her self-discipline, drive, and courage to commit to aviation. She graduated from UCLA with a degree in biology and was an honors student at East Los Angeles College.

Professionally, Stacia has been a clinic assistant, activity coordinator for nursing homes, and a swim coach. Stacia is fluent in Cantonese and has a social media following bridging the Hong Kong and greater LA Cantonese communities. Sharing her general aviation journey is helping inspire others to start aviation regardless of language, gender, or race. In her spare time she enjoys hiking the San Gabriel Mountains and reading.

Stacia aspires to obtain her ratings and join SkyWest Airlines as a first officer on an Embraer 175 in the next five years. She plans to build hours and upgrade to captain and continue bilingual outreach.

“I want to say a huge thank you for the Si Robin Foundation Flight Training Scholarship that is helping me with my private pilot certificate training. It’s really awesome to get this support, and it’s making a big difference in my aviation goals.

Chasing my dream takes a lot of time and money, and your generosity is easing the financial side of things. Now I don’t have to work as many hours, so I can put more focus on my lessons and flights. This means I’ll finish up faster and get to flying on my own sooner.

Your help isn’t just about the money—it’s motivating me to contribute back to the aviation world someday. Thanks again for believing in me and making this happen.”
